

Low Mag GA.

Incident x-rays for reflection cathode, note the image will be stretched in one direction and if the x-rays are imaged to the cathode then the depth of field must be sufficient. In addition an external slit is required for time resolution (not supplied) although strip cathodes could be made.

Incident x-rays for transmission cathode (slightly off normal)

possible alternative mounting flange plane

